

THE INFLUENCE OF THE STORAGE TEMPERATURE ON THE SEEDS OF WILD SPECIES. 3. SEEDS WITH MORPHOLOGICAL AND MORPHOPHYSIOLOGICAL DORMANCY

© G. E. Levitskaya*

Institute of Cell Biophysics Russian Academy of Sciences, Pushchino, Russia

*E-mail: levitskaya_g@mail.ru

REFERENCES

1. Levitskaya G. E. 2014. The influence of the storage temperature on the seeds of wild species. 1. The not-dormant seeds and seeds with non-deep physiological dormancy. — Rastitelnye resursy. 50(4): 534—548. (In Russian)
2. Levitskaya G. E. 2015. The influence of the storage temperature on the seeds of wild species. 2. Seeds with physiological dormancy in the case of Campanula (Campanulaceae) species. — Rastitelnye resursy. 51(1): 38—51. (In Russian)
3. Nikolaeva M. G., Lyanguzova I. V., Pozdova L. M. 1999. Biologiya semyan [Seeds biology]. St. Peterburg. 232 p. (In Russian)
4. Levitskaya G. E. 2009. Biological characteristics of seeds of some species of the flora of the southern of Moscow region and their response to cryoconservation. — Rastitelnye resursy. 45(3): 9—30. (In Russian)
5. Hoekstra F. A., Golovina E. A. 1999. Membrane behavior during dehydration: Implications for desiccation tolerance. — Rus. J. Plant Physiol. 46(3): 295—306. (In Russian)
6. Villiers T. A. 1972. Cytological study in dormancy. II. Pathological ageing changes during prolonged dormancy and recovery upon dormancy release. — New Phytologist. 71(1): 145—152.
7. Kalembe E., Pucacka S. 2007. Possible roles of LEA proteins and sHSPs in seed protection: a short review. — Biological Lett. 44(1): 3—16.
8. Tunnacliffe A., Michael T. W. 2007. The continuing conundrum of the LEA proteins. — Naturwissenschaften. 94: 791—812.